

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

- 5 Cutouts are formed in a front end plate disposed of a motor body. A thrust member, which has a hump segment to touch and press against a rear end surface of a rotary shaft frontward, is detachably attached to the motor body such that distal ends of arm segments of the thrust member are fitted into respective cutouts of the front end plate.